

Explorer News

1st Quarter 2015

Rebuilding Tintswalo Atlantic - The rise of the Phoenix

So much is happening on site, the continuous evolution of the phoenix that will rise from the ashes.

From a site with nothing much left but mangled pieces of debris, to the clearance which involved removing a good layer of the sooty soil with a bulldozer, the Atlantic site has taken on a drastic reformation over the past few weeks. The Milkwoods were declared dead and had to be removed – the new view will take some getting used to!

Last week the first timber was laid for the floor structure of Lamu Island Suite. This felt rather symbolic to the team on site, since Lamu Suite was the first building to be completely razed by the flames. Last weekend the first wall structure was erected. From now things will move fast, especially with such an awesome building team in place. They are led by Keith Rudd, who was involved with the building of the original Tintswalo Atlantic.

Our photo blog tells the story so much better... Read more