

Say I do to winter wedded bliss

Reese Witherspoon and Jim Toth, Kate Middleton and Prince William, Victoria and David Beckham – these are all celebrity weddings that brides across South Africa would love to have for themselves. Toe-tapping tunes, famous friends, and fabulous foods are all important, but in order to achieve celeb status when it comes to creating your perfect day, the venue is as important as your choice of dress. Michelle du Plessis, Managing Director for the Tintswalo Lodges, explores the luxurious Tintswalo Atlantic's perfect setting for a dream wedding, even in the winter months.

After all who wouldn't choose to get married at the time of year when glamour and enchantment are the major elements? Think roaring hearth fires, candle-lit venues, gorgeous, elegant sweeping silk dresses trimmed with faux fur, warm wraps and coats, and added to that glorious soul foods and delectable red wines. Yes, summer is perhaps hard to beat, but the magic of winter is for some the season of choice, and the reasons are not hard to see, especially if you choose a venue such as Tintswalo Atlantic.

The five star luxurious Tintswalo Atlantic offers venues that lend themselves to that snug, comfortable and intimate winter wedding feel with all the extravagant and opulent touches that you come to expect from a celebrity function, while still leaving the chill of winter outside. With unsurpassed views, the lodge provides a unique and romantic setting, offering wedding parties the opportunity to experience romantic settings amidst absolute tranquillity while enjoying our understated elegance and style. In addition, Tintswalo Atlantic boasts eleven Island Suites as well as a Presidential Suite to cater to guests' overnight needs, all of which are sea-facing and have breathtaking views of the Sentinel.
